In Flight: The Journey

Mission control — 10, 9, 8, 7, 6, 5, 4, 3, 2, 1.: Blast Off! Inflight 1996! A turning point in time, North Carolina Central University continued its rich legacy by providing students a liberal arts education which upholds our purpose of higher learning. We as students, faculty, and staff, collectively took pride in what North Carolina Central University had to offer. Our enjoyment was not only found in the educational experience of NCCU, but the knowledge and pride that is offered at every historically black college. NCCU took off as we approached the 21st century. Refusing to be left behind, NCCU connected with the internet system. We flew to bring the promise of the future intune with modern technology. NCCU possessed an unparalleled reputation that left us to soar in the "Friendly Skies".

Inflight 96 continues.

What does student life mean? To some, it may have meant stressful classes, late night study sessions, and community service. To others it meant parlaying with friends during 10:40 break, enjoying pep rallies, and being graced with musical selections by the football team as they compose melodies such as "Dookie Love", with cafeteria waves. Regardless which memories you hold dear, the fact remains, Eagles were Inflight for 1996.

From the first day where freshman wondered around campus looking for classes to seniors completing their curriculum and biding farewells, student life is an intricate component of NCCU life. Here we gathered the ingredients and made long lasting friendships that take flight just as inevitably as our careers. From the sloping hills filled with verdant green, every aspect of NCCU is a lifetime experience for each and every student. When we look back years from now, as students of this day (1995-1996), we will realize how wonderful an experience we had at Dear Ole' NCC.

Focus On the Nest

"I can't wait to leave home," was a common phrase heard among students. North Carolina Central University embraced the new freshmen and welcomed back the upperclassmen. Mom and dad made sure their babies had all their needed supplies. Now you share a room with a stranger. "Will we get along?" Questions flood students' minds. NCCU's residential halls have certain charms and unforgettable qualities. False fire alarms, broken elevators, and mandatory hall meetings. The student resident assistants took the place of parental units, and disciplined when necessary. Where else do you have so many neighbors that you can visit, and you do not even have to go outside. Of course students do not have all the comforts of home, but it is a change in environment. The transition was difficult at first, but it became routine. Fun and new challenges are what NCCU is all about.

The Dating Game: A Night Of Modeling And Fun

Seeing that NCCU is the place for fashion, and fun, the dating game seemed to be the appropriate way to set off our campus flair! As the game began laughter filled the air while participants gave snappy comebacks, and flaunted eye-catching body language. The audience picked up the pace, roaring with mischievous quips, while breaking contestant's nervous mood. The dating game was not only joyous entertainment, but a way to help Eagles find love.

NURSING

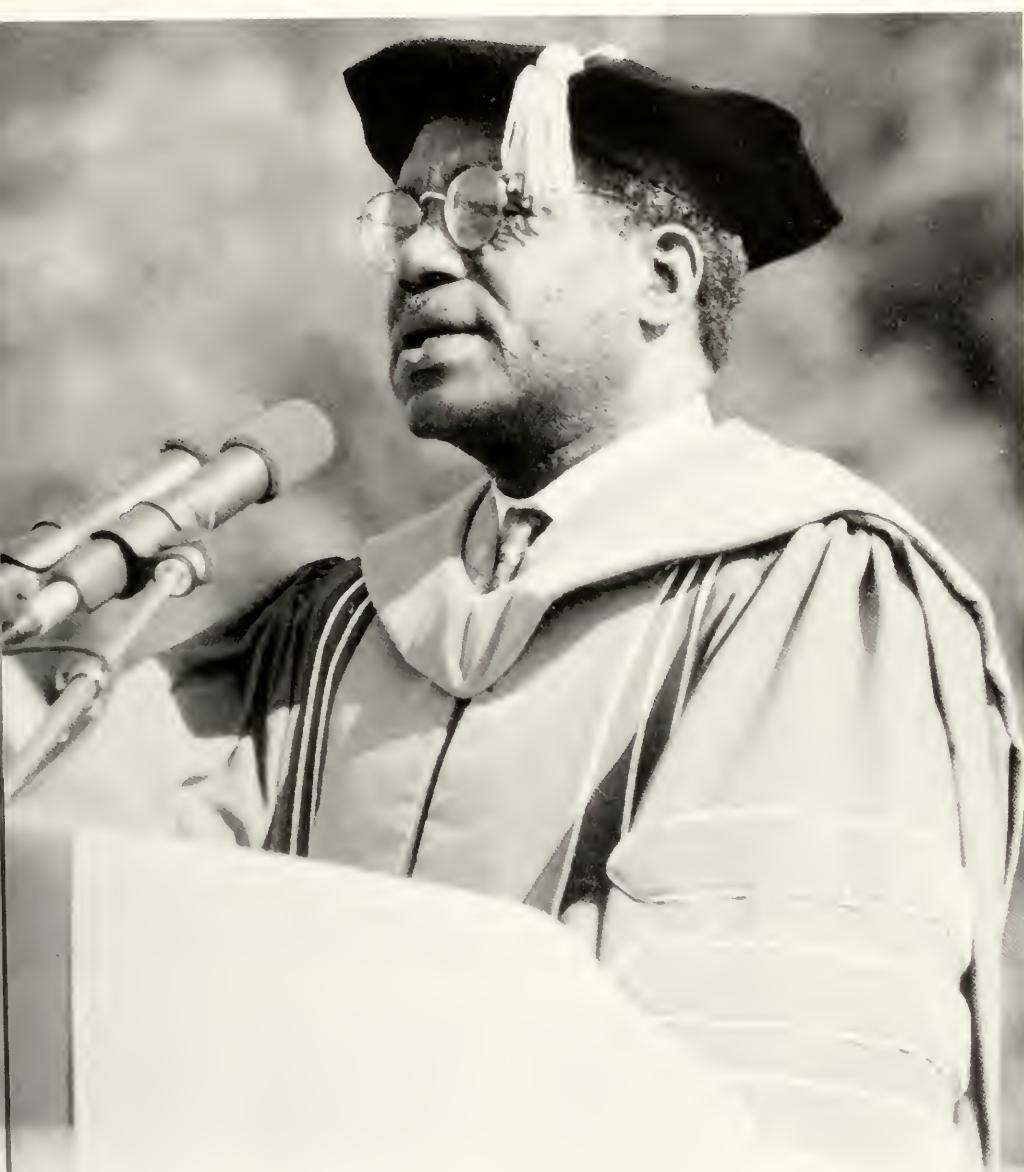

Since returning to his alma mater, North Carolina Central University in 1993, Chancellor Chambers has promoted a vision of NCCU as a strong liberal arts institution that is committed to excellence and diversity. Under his leadership, nine (9) endowed chairs have been funded, the amount raised for student scholarships has increased substantially a number of buildings are scheduled for renovation and ground will break for several buildings during 1996.

NCCU is on the move. Alumni giving is up and all academic programs have been reviewed to ensure they are strong, viable and relevant.

Chancellor Chambers continues to make great strides for North Carolina Central University and the Durham Community. A dedicated scholar and civic leader, Chambers leads by example. Although he's not always visible on campus, Chambers is student-oriented; furthermore, his open-door policy allows students, faculty, and staff the opportunity to dialogue about issues facing NCCU.

To the Underclassmen: These years will represent the molding of what you will become. As underclassmen, we meet our closest friends and share the experiences only known on NCCU campus. Together we grew independent, responsible and mature. As Eagles, we go through many cycles. As freshmen we stumble through the cracks of a new environment of the unknown. As sophomores, we recognized our setting and blend into the crowd, not losing our individualism. As juniors, we grasp the notion of having only one more year until we ventured out into the world of more with a new set of rules. Our years here at NCCU prepare us for the challenge. The challenge to prove to the world how an education from NCCU prepared us to be successful in the chosen careers.

CENTRAL

"United We Stand, and Divided We Fall."

Teamwork! That was what NCCU athletics stood for. In the stands, Eagle Pride was generated to let the opponents know who they were against. Not only did NCCU teams strive to win games, they strived to win in the classroom. Together the teams worked towards success. Our football team improved, while the men's tennis team moved toward the CIAA championship. At NCCU, all athletic teams go the extra mile, because it takes a little "extra" to be champion. That little "extra" is why the Eagles always soar to the top.

What Time Is It? Game Time!

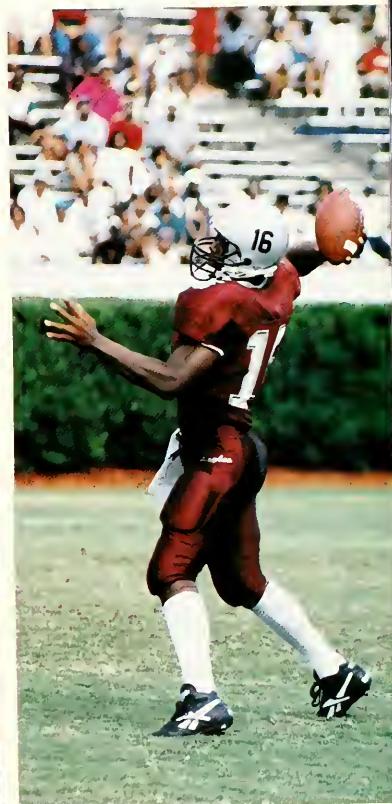

The 1995 Eagle football team, coached by Larry Little, were looking forward to a winning season this fall. The Eagles took on many power house teams and conquered several such as Howard, Winston-Salem, and Johnson C. Smith.

Although there were some heartbreaks, the Eagles put forth a truly excellent team effort. So together these Eagles took charge and soared above all competition.

Tennis

Tennis is 50% physical and 50% mental. Preparing for the take off, our team strided on to the court as they took on a new season. The team members eagerly practiced as they awaited competition from other schools.

With the might of the Eagle's wings, the tennis team soared as they hoped for victory.

Armed with their racquets, these Eagles moved swiftly in flight.

Pulling their weight; the mighty tennis team scored.

Dedication was the tennis team's recipe for victory.

Soaring to new heights, North Carolina Central University Lady Eagles took it to the top. High expectations were established for the women's basketball season this year. The ultimate goal for the ball club was not always, win, win, win. Much emphasis were placed on disciplines, improving skills, and having a love for the sport. Full of multi-talented players, the Lady Eagles showed that team work, skill, and pride were keys in having a successful season.

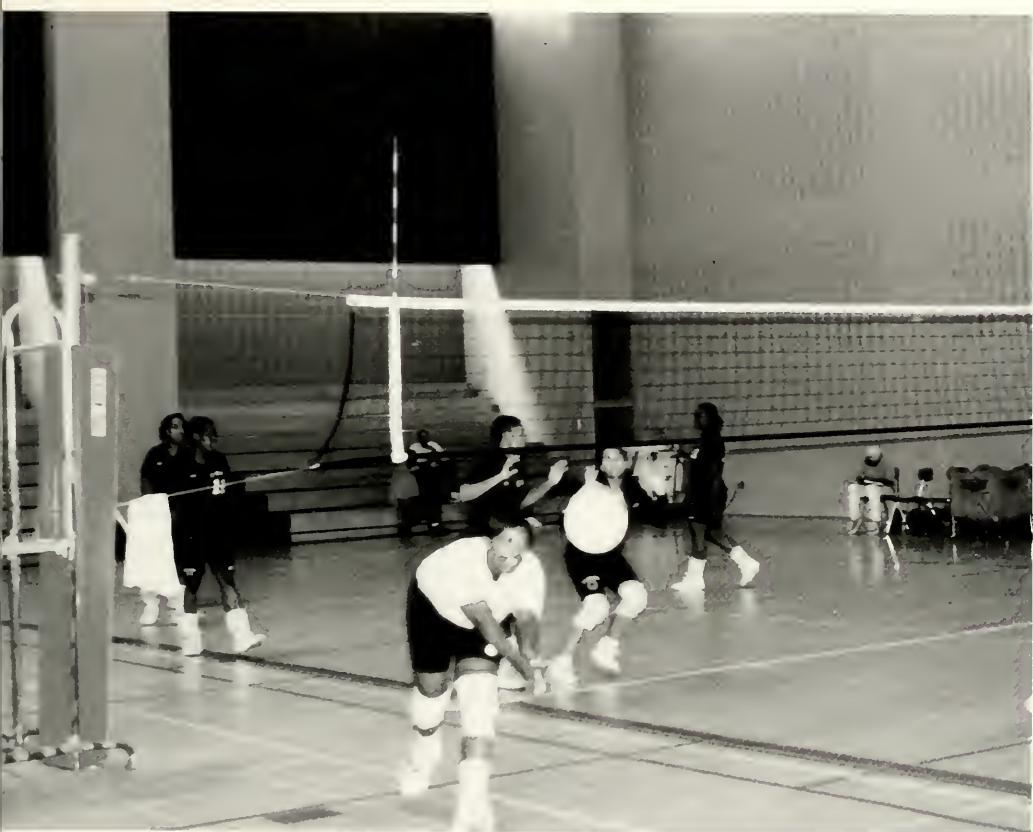

Being a athlete as well as a student took responsibility as well as time management. "I've learned to adjust from being a student to being a student athlete," said Tameka Davis, member of the NCCU women's basketball team.

NCCU's Marching Sound Machine Marking Time

Early morning, late nights, and long practices; it is hard work trying to be a marching eagle but it all pays off in the end because now . . . It is half time. The heart beat of the band can be felt pulsing throughout the stadium as the Sound Machine came alive on the field. Mr. Xavier Cason, the proud director of the band, looks onto the field with a smile as the show begins. The drum majors' white sound, the beat of the drum begins, and 90 degree goes through the mind of every band member on the field. The crowd cheers with excitement as the Sound Machine plays with pride.

Softball, Winding Up For Flight

Batter up! Here's the pitch! Smash! Right into center field. This year the lovely ladies of Eagle Softball were lead by Coach Cruise and Coach Hall. From the smooth moves of slow pitch to the high speed of a fly ball, these ladies pulled together to keep their record at its best. Never to be outdone, these Eagles placed CIAA once again; causing fellow Eagles to swell with pride. Shining brighter than ever each member agreed that Eagle Spirit created success, which only proves that we Eagles are prepared for a prideful flight.

By: Shaina Montgomery

The Flight . . .

The Pathways of our lives . . .

We have come so far together,

Each of us Unique,

Yet united as a class.

Our class

The class of '96

The flight wasn't easy

Turbulence,

Stormy Nights,

Breakdowns,

Blocked our destination.

We need others

to guide us when we lost our way,

to pick us up when we fall down, and

to put us back on track.

Together we'll reach our goal

Our ways will diverge,

Our lives will change,

We realize that this is not our destination

But only a milestone

Marking the ascension to the future.

The road behind us

is paved with memories,

the road ahead

is paved with dreams

so now concludes one flight and it is time to embark upon another.

THE YEAR 1995 IN REVIEW

Lift off for Inflight 1996! The year, 1995, brought many memorable events. 1995 brought an increase in the U.S. Post Office, first class stamp, from .29 cents to .32 cents and a year long coverage of the O.J. Simpson Case. Mike Tyson was released from prison after being sentenced for three years. In April, a car bomb exploded outside the Alfred P. Murrah Federal Building in Oklahoma City, Oklahoma; killing 169 people and injuring approximately 500 people. The Summer of 1995 brought the promise of freedom as the U.S. Marines rescued Capt. Scott O'Grady from Bosnia; moreover, after the celebration, a San Francisco's Unabomber laid attack on a plane during America's reflection of Independence since 1776.

The tragic discovery of two dead children was revealed as Susan Smith was found guilty of first degree murder and sentenced to life in prison for drowning her two sons in South Carolina. Ortheral James Simpson (OJ) was acquitted of murdering his ex-wife, Nicole Brown-Simpson, and her friend Ronald Goldman. Over a million African-American men claimed the streets of our nation's capital, Washington, D.C. for a Day of Reconciliation. The march was headed by Louis Farrakhan, the Prime Minister for the Nation of Islam. The fall of 1995 herald with the death of Israeli prime Minister, Yitzhak Rabin and troops were deployed to maintain peace in Bosnia. As the year, 1995, ended, 1996 blew in with focus on the 1996 Presidential Campaign and the Federal Government shutdown.

Although our mission came to a halt, the events of 1996 will continue to be recorded.

YOU CAN BE...

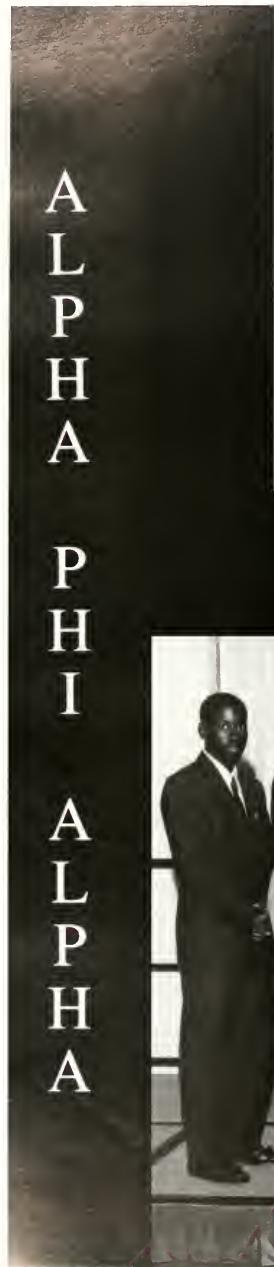

Campus Greek Life; it is a conglomerate of community service, social mixing, and most importantly, the spirit of brotherhood and sisterhood. This year this spirit could be seen through the crowd pleasing stepping of campus fraternities and sororities, through commitment to the community as seen in community services such as day-care volunteering, and through social mixers like formal and semi-formal balls. This year Greek Life at North Carolina Central University can be marked by sorority sisters singing in the circle of sisterhood out on the yard, fraternity brothers proclaiming their dedication to their fraternity in the early morning hours on their plot, fundraising through doughnut sales, parties and car washes, rushes that signify the first step to a lifetime of commitment to community service and the doctrines of fraternities and sororities, and the coming out of new fraternity and sorority members. North Carolina Central University fraternities and sororities are an important aspect of campus life. They serve as a model of brotherhood and sisterhood for all our African American brothers and sisters greek and non-greek.

Looking back over the long journey to the completion of the 1995-96 Eagle Yearbook. It has been a tremendous task, but someone had to do it. Being a member of the yearbook staff does not only consist of just coming in and working, but it also means long hours and having a love for what you are doing. As the staff can remember, we had a rough beginning but after we changed pilots, things were on the right track; furthermore, allowing us to reach our final deadline on time. I am asking if anyone has any problems with the 1996 edition of The Eagle; please come and become a part of the Eagle Yearbook staff. I would personally like to express my sincere appreciation to Rashad, Shaina, Danielle, Linette, Natasha, Tamera, and Sonya for all their support and commitment to the production of this publication. This publication would not have been completed if it were not for the assistance and guidance of Mr. Dietrich A. Morrison, our advisor. In addition, to your many tasks, thanks for being there. Thank you Brian, Paul, Mike, and Mr. "D" for taking time out to photograph the NCCU community, without your assistance the yearbook would not have been complete.

As I walked in the office of Student Activities and Greek Life to join the yearbook staff, I was quite apprehensive. I wondered was I in over my head, or could I handle the responsibility of helping to produce a college yearbook. I knew from previous experience that working on a yearbook would be difficult. As the year progressed, I got to know the staff, and we became a close knit family. I learned new things that I did not experience while working on the yearbook in high school. I especially learned the rigorous task of designing the yearbook by hand. I always kept an open mind, and I always asked for suggestions to help make the design of the book look better. I am glad I joined the staff, and I look forward to working on the staff next year.

When I first saw the announcement about receiving community service hours for working on the yearbook, knew right from the start that this would be an easy way for me to complete the University Community Service requirement. I realized that I was wrong. Working on the yearbook was a difficult task. The staff was under staffed in the beginning and remained under staffed. Those of us who served on the staff were dedicated and committed to making sure that the yearbook would be complete and ready for distribution by April 25, 1996. Indeed, it was difficult but no struggle an easy struggle.

Hard work and dedication are words that come to mind when I thought of the Eagle Yearbook. The small staff worked long, hard, tiresome nights to produce this book of Eagle Pride. My track record as a EYB staffer began as simply something else to be involved in. It ended though, as a rewarding experience coupled with new friends. From Shaunte's take charge personality (i.e. persistence) to Rashad, (fan of the NCCU shrimp basket special), the Eagle Yearbook was something special.

As time quickly slips from our grasp, we reveal in the fact that this year has come to a successful end. Over the course of a few months, our staff has been transformed from complete strangers into a close-knit family. Whether it was the strenuous, prolonged hours of just giving up our free time; our staff has endured through it all. Which only verifies the mode of each member; dedication and hard work. So, what more can I say about the year 1996! Simple, our aspiration and expectations are no longer "Inflight."

As a member of the yearbook staff, I learned what hard work and dedication was really about. My co-workers and new friends worked together to achieve our goals and deadlines. The Eagle Yearbook staff helped me balance my time for studying, socializing, and getting my work done. Since August 1995, we worked hard to complete a respectable product. Sometimes that meant coming in at 2:00 p.m. and not leaving until 10:00 p.m. at night. The workload was plenty, but we always managed to finish out staff assignments. Since serving on the yearbook staff, I have become more responsible and the experience has allowed me to deal with other academic challenges.

North Carolina Central University offers a variety of organizations in which a student can become involved. Whether one wants to be apart of the Sound Machine, the Eagle marching band, or the NAACP. NCCU has an organization to fit any personality.

Organizations offer ways to give back to the Durham community. Many of the organizations are responsible for giving back to and helping the community around the University.

NCCU organizations also may teach one something about their ownself. One may even improve or develop skills that maybe a benefit in years to come. Getting involved in an organization not only expresses Eagle Pride, but prepares students for their flight into the future.
